NOT SO CHEERFUL

A deficit of $100,000,000 faces the State of California for the biennium beginning July 1st of this year and ending June 30th, 1937. Such was the New Year message conveyed to the people in a radio address by Governor Merriam, Wednesday evening. Not a very cheerful outlook, to say the least.

FIXED EXPENSES

The information was also vouchsafed that of close to $400,000,000 raised to run this commonwealth 76 percent thereof is for fixed expenses—that is expenses over which the governor has no jurisdiction because they are fixed by law. Despite pruning in every possible direction the governor frankly admitted that unless new ways and means are devised to raise revenue we are going to be badly "in the hole."

The governor is faced with a difficult problem and if he can find the solution we will all rise up and call his name blessed.

SOMETHING WRONG

There is something radically wrong with the way we manage our governmental affairs and the fault cannot be laid at Governor Merriam's door. No business can survive which spends more than it takes in. That fact is so simple that even a child can grasp it. The answer is also plain but the method by which it can be accomplished is not. There's the rub.

SEEMS EASY

To cut down expenses might seem to the ordinary individual not such a hard nut to crack. But the people back of every activity immediately protest when their project or activity is threatened. They can easily invent a thousand or more excuses why it should be liberally endowed with cash for its continuance and furtherance and are equally as adept in providing reasons why other causes should be submitted to the trimming process. As a result these conflicting elements get the logging game in motion with the outcome generally being that nothing is done along the line of economy.

HOW IT BEGAN

At the risk of wounding the tender sensibilities of many people I am going to be brutally frank and say that our present situation is the result of the following:

Install Heads Of Local Y. M. I. Lodge At Meet

Before a large crowd last night in Memorial hall, John Sindlich, Jr. was installed as president of Burke Council, of Y. M. I.

Officers were presented to the incoming and outgoing officers during the ceremonies, held under the direction of District Deputy Thomas Quill of Phoebe.

Officers installed during the evening were:

Michael Nugent, first vice-president; James Murphy, second vice-president; Jerry Malone, marshal; Jerry Riordan, outside sentinel; Chris Carr, inside sentinel; Michael Carr, financial secretary; William Carey, recording secretary and Martin Matern, treasurer.

A counter offer of $375 per month, the regular salary of the district attorney, was made by the board of supervisors, but no agreement had been reached late today.

CONGRESS TO GET BONUS FIGHT SOON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—UP—The 74th Congress, faced to be one of the most important in history, convened today in an atmosphere of peace and harmony but with heated battles over inflation, the soldiers' bonus and the 30 hour week bubbling near the surface.

Both House and Senate were called into order promptly at noon. Packed galleries looked down at dignified senators in correctly cut frock coats proudly took their oath of office and as the House noisily acclaimed as its speaker, Representative Joseph W. Byrns, the first Tennesseean to hold this post in 100 years.

TO GIVE MESSAGE

President Roosevelt waited at the White House to receive word that Congress was ready to begin work. He will appear in person tomorrow at a joint session to read his message on the state of the nation. It is expected to be brief and devoted largely to a resume of the work done by the government agencies since the old Congress adjourned sine die. Tomorrow night the chief executive will meet with leaders of both Houses and outline his legislative program.

Speaker-elect Byrns, tall, spare and shrewd politician of the old school, appealed for harmony and cooperation as he took office. Minority Leader Bertrand Snell, Republican, New York, issued a statement promising that his group would meet each legislative proposal "with open minds."

G. O. P. PROGRAM

Snell made public a 20 point program with which House Republicans will wage a right to begin this year. It included immediate balancing of the federal budget, sound money, permanent insurance of bank deposits, a protective tariff, strengthening of anti-trust laws, and the removal of profits from

Two Bandits Given State Prison Terms

Two young men, arrested following the robbery of an El Cerrito cafe several weeks ago, were given sentences in state prison yesterday by an Oakland jurist.

John Carroway, of Oakland, was sentenced to serve five years to life in San Quentin while his companion, A. J. Limieux, alias Jack Vance, was given a similar sentence in Folsom prison.

They were charged with robbing a drug store at 2810 Grove street, Oakland.

Sentence was handed down by Superior Judge James M. Ogden in the Alameda county superior court.

The two men, police say, held up a San Pablo avenue cafe in El Cerrito, robbed the till and three patrons and escaped with $35 in cash. A police broadcast was issued and the two men were picked up by Berkeley police while driving through the College City.

Both suspects were identified by August Gatto, proprietor of the cafe, as the two robbers.

As Oakland police were looking for the men in connection with a series of robberies there, the two suspects were turned over to Alameda county authorities for trial.

El Cerrito police placed a "hold order" on the two and if they are released from prison they will be brought here to stand trial on the holdup charge.

THREE HURT IN CRASHES DURING RAIN

Three persons were injured more or less seriously last night in automobile accidents.

Two of the crashes occurred on Tank Farm Hill near the road leading to the Peralta Golf Club while the third occurred in El Cerrito. All accidents were blamed to the heavy rain.

OAKLAND MAN HURT

Charles M. Wood, 47, of 4120 Morris street, Oakland, was given first aid treatment at the Richmond Cottage Hospital after his car collided with a truck and trailer on the brow of Tank Farm Hill. Both machines were driving south. Wood, police say, did not see the trailer until he was directly upon it and when he applied his brakes, the car skidded and smashed into the trailer.

Wood's car was badly damaged. He was brought to the hospital by passing motorists. Later he turned to his home. The name of the truck driver could not be learned.

In the second accident on Tank Farm Hill, M. H. Cline, 5418 Potomac boulevard sustained injuries to his back and legs but escaped death when he lost control of his machine and it toppled over a 20-foot embankment. Cline reported that his car started to skid and when he attempted to right it, he lost control and the machine went over the bank. The car was slightly damaged.

Cline was brought to the Cottage hospital where he was treated by Dr. E. R. Guinan. He was later removed to his home in Oakland.

HEARING IS CONDUCTED AT CAPITAL

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—UP—Solution of transportation problems connected with the Oakland bay bridge may be left to authorities of communities served by the bridge. It was indicated tonight following a public hearing on the matter.

More than 200 representatives of bay region interests and communities attended the hearing at which Governor Frank Merriam presided.

Richmond was represented at the hearing by Attorney Robert Collins from City Attorney Thomas Carlson's office and by Councilman Otto Ludwig.

Both Ludwig and Collins were interested spectators at the hearing. They will make their reports to the city council on Monday night.

Sentiment expressed at the meeting indicated approval of immediate action by the California Toll Bridge Authority for an additional $10,000,000 to provide interurban facilities for the bridge.

LOAN IS STUDIED

The chief difference of opinion expressed by official representatives at the session was whether the State's application for the additional loan, if finally accepted, would be in the nature of a binding agreement or constitute an option on the sum requested.

Harrison Robinson, chairman of the citizen's advisory committee to the Toll Authority said he was confident that the loan agreement with the RPB would constitute an option. He pointed out that as stipulated to date the agreement provided that the Toll Bridge Authority must follow certain provisions, guaranteeing removal of

Murder Of Man Is Confessed to State Police

SEATTLE, Jan. 3.—UP—A chance remark that resulted in the arrest of two men at Yakima brought a confession from one of the suspects that killed Abraham G. Perry, reputedly wealthy Cle Elum merchant, two years ago. State police announced today.

Lee Harrison, 46, held in Yakima on a charge of burglary, told investigators that Jack Slegle, 50, also under arrest at Yakima, shot Perry and robbed him of $2,000 in his store January 23, 1932. Slegle denied connection with the murder.

The arrests were made by State Officers McCauley and C. L. Woodward, who have worked on the case for several months at the request of Perry's widow.

Investigation Is Opened In Crash Death

Charles F. Richardson, 51-year-old SERRA worker who was killed in an automobile accident Wednesday night, will be paid final respects at funeral services to be held at 3 o'clock today from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel. Interment will be in Sunset View cemetery.

Richardson, who resided at 511 Evelyn street, Albany, died as the result of injuries suffered when he was struck by a machine driven by Leon Schwartz, 18, of Oakland at Panhandle boulevard and San Pablo avenue in El Cerrito.

An investigation into the death was opened yesterday morning by Deputy District Attorney T. N. Calfee at the El Cerrito city hall.

CALL WITNESSES

Robert Pryor, 67081 Fairmont avenue, was the first witness called. He declared that he was sitting in a machine near the scene of the accident. Pryor declared that Schwartz was traveling at about 35 miles an hour and that when he struck Richardson, the latter was thrown 50 or 60 feet. Pryor stated that the lights on Schwartz' car were off after the accident, but that he did not know whether they were lighted before the crash. Pryor stated that in his opinion there was no excuse for the accident.

Another witness, Raymond Dixon, who resides on Behrens street, declared there was no reason for Schwartz to be in the middle lane of traffic, and that the young man was traveling at a speed of 50 miles an hour or over. Dixon declared that he did not see how Schwartz could have hit the man.

DRIVER CALLED

Schwartz testified that his lights were on, that he remembered turning them on just after leaving the San Rafael ferry.

Mrs. Richardson was present. She told Calfee that she had been working and did not know where her husband was going when he was struck. He was a SERRA worker, she said, and had been in Oakland during the day to get his work card.

An inquest in the death is pending.

HAUPTMANN CALM WHEN STORY TOLD

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 3.—UP—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today told a sympathetic world—a world which had waited 30 months for the story—about the murder of their son.

They told it calmly—explaining that same courage which enabled them to live sanely through the tragedy.

HEARS STORY

Thirty feet across the courtroom from them sat Bruno Richard Hauptmann on trial for his life. He was the same granite faced prisoner today that he always has been, but when court recessed at 4:07 P. M. his clothing was damp with perspiration.

Tears were shed, but they didn't come from the eyes of Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Not even when Attorney General David T. Wilentz walked slowly toward the witness chair and held before her a torn and stained scrap of cloth—the shirt which on the evening of March 1, 1932, she wrapped around the child she never saw again.

NO TEARS

Her hands trembled, but she gulped back her grief, paused a moment and said: "Yes, that is the shirt."

For 40 minutes she stayed on the stand, then she was dismissed, and said: "The witness is yours."

ANNE SMILES

Reilly said: "We have no desire to cross examine Mrs. Lindbergh. And then—for the first time today she smiled—and it was at the lawyer who is defending the alleged murderer of her son."

LINDY CALLED

When a prosecution lawyer called out, "Colonel Lindbergh, please," the tall aviator covered the 30 feet to the witness chair in eight strides and began his testimony in a firm, loud voice.

Lindbergh told the story that now has become familiar wherever men read newspapers or spread information by word of mouth—the story of how he heard a crash and a rattle against the outside wall of Both fighters have reputations as terrific hitters, and many fans are predicting a knock-out ending to the bout.

The two contenders for Bob Olin's light-heavyweight crown finished training yesterday, and their handlers report both in top condition.

Errors in admission of testimony, erroneous instruction of the jury, and prejudicial remarks of the court when the jury returned for instructions after failing to reach an early agreement were given by Schottky as the grounds he will present in asking the retrial.

Judge E. N. Rector, acting under a new state law which permits the judge to discuss evidence, said he believed Mrs. Talkington unquestionably guilty of the murder of her husband, Lamar "Bob" Talkington.

Convicted of first degree murder, Mrs. Talkington faces a sentence of life imprisonment when she appears for sentence Friday.

If necessary, the appeal will be carried to the supreme court, defense attorneys said.

DEFICIT IS NOT INCLUDED IN NEW BUDGET

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—UP—California's 1935-37 budget, predicted to be the largest in state history, will not include a present general fund deficit of approximately $30,000,000 Governor Frank Merriam announced today.

Legislative and state financial leaders have speculated for months concerning disposition of the growing deficit. The $30,000,000 estimate represented the expected total July 1, end of the current biennium.

Merriam said he believed that $100,000,000 would be required to meet general fund expenses for the coming biennium.

The governor declared he was opposed to imposition of an ad

Family Trouble Is Not Suicide Cause

In connection with the death of Mrs. Maria Brazil it was inadvertently stated that her act in taking her own life was due to family troubles. This was an unfortunate error and not in accordance with the facts as investigation showed the family relations had always been of the most harmonious nature. This statement is made in justice to the surviving husband.

ROOSEVELT SON ARREST BRINGS ROW

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 3.—UP.—Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been arrested by a local prosecutor David Torrance, who is seeking a continuance for the case of his son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who is charged with speeding.

The prosecutor received the letter from White House attorneys today.

Torrance also received a telegram from Franklin D. Jr., saying he would be unable to appear in court today and requesting a postponement of his case until Saturday.

IS WORRIED

The prosecutor frankly was worried at mail he is receiving about the case. He said that if Roosevelt does not appear his case will be postponed until Monday.

Young Franklin, a Harvard student and son of the President, has been arrested before in Connecticut for speeding and also faces a similar charge in Pennsylvania. He was arrested here last month charged with speeding between 75 and 80 miles an hour along the Boston Post Road, with his brother John.

WIDE ATTENTION

The case attracted wide attention and Torrance has received scores of letters. Many of the letters are anonymous and some are from cranks.

Some of the letters berate the defendant for recklessness while others defend him.

GOT LETTER

Torrance was not worried, he said, until he got the letter from Mrs. Roosevelt today. He would not reveal its contents but said it requested leniency.

One letter, signed "A Connecticut Yankee," asked that the court give young Franklin "the works" and a postscript said:

"I'll bet you a new deal by Roosevelt that he didn't put up no $500 bond for his appearance in court."

DIVIDED LETTERS

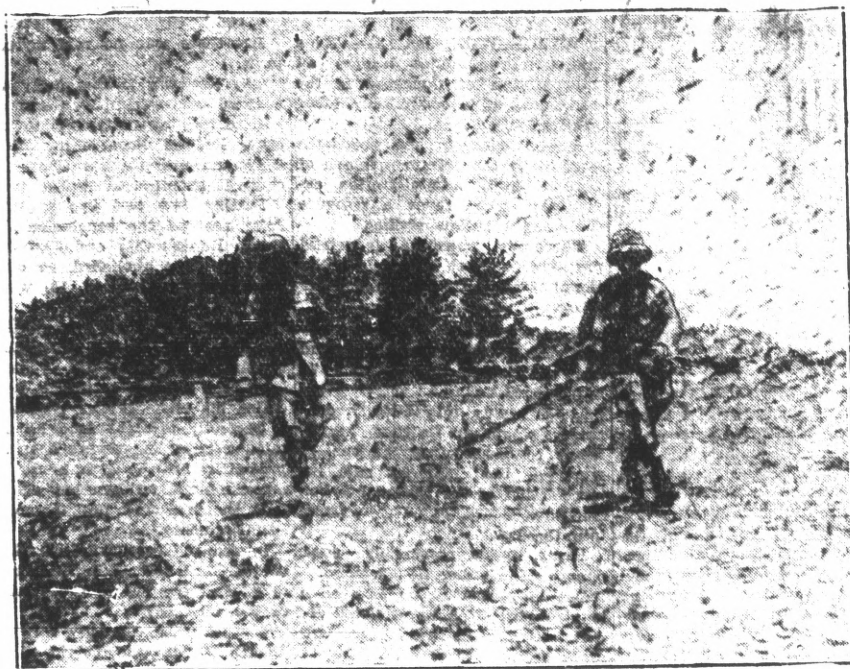

According to Torrance opinion was divided among the several hundred commentators on the charge. Some wanted him to be "shown the courtesy due a president's son." Others declared "it makes no difference who he is, he's no better than anyone else."

Young Roosevelt ran into the law twice before in Connecticut at Windsor and Union. At the latter place state police at Stafford Springs smoothed over the incident after it first had been reported there was a lively argument between the president's son and a trooper as to just how fast his car was traveling.

Torrance said he did not intend to be guided by sentiment but would see "that the case was handled on its merits alone."

SINCLAIR CLAIMS EPIC IS ADOPTED BY STATE-NATION

INSTALLMENT FORTY-ONE. I have finished the story of the campaign, and now have to comment on its significance to the people of California and the rest of the country.

NO VICTORY FOR REACTION. The victory of Merriam was not a victory for reaction. One of our achievements during the campaign was that we forced the old gentleman completely out of his lifelong position. Before the fight was over he had announced himself as "heartily in accord with President Roosevelt's policies." He proved it in a genuine and touching way by dumping onto Roosevelt's shoulders all the gravest of his problems—old age pensions, unemployment insurance, relief for the destitute and the thirty-hour week.

CRIOUS PROBLEM. This sudden conversion of a Republican of the school of Mark Hanna to the most alarming of brain-trust ideas suggests a curious problem. You will recall J. P. O'Connor, Controller of the Washington and a two-hour conference with Merriam. You may be sure that "Ham" Cotton had conferences with Merriam and that Cotton emissaries to Washington carried proposals from Merriam.

DOESN'T BLAME PRESIDENT. Let me make plain: I am not suggesting that President Roosevelt had any part in such a deal. He leaves political matters very largely to Jim Farley and his henchmen, and in dealing with State political machines these gentlemen have to do their best to get what the Administration needs. If the Republican Governor of a key state like California were to agree to come out for the New Deal, and to distribute a reasonable amount of patronage to the Democratic who had supported him, it might become possible for Federal funds to be entrusted to the handling of so friendly and obliging a statesman. I have shown how such arrangements were made between the Democratic and Republican machines in New York. Why should not the same bipartisan alliance be extended to national affairs? In England they have a disfigured name for it, a "coalition government," and its purpose is to put down labor and Socialism. Why should the method not be applied to California, to keep the Governorship from falling into the hands of an atheist and agent of Moscow?

We shall be able to tell about this after Merriam has made some of his appointments. We shall be able to judge his new provincialism when the legislature meets and we read his message. So far the signs all point toward the "left."

ADOPTS EPIC PLAN

The Governor-elect waited only two or three days after the election before taking over the EPIC plan. He announced in a speech that the unemployed must have work, and that, much opposed as he was to the idea of letting them produce for barter, he would adopt it as a matter of temporary necessity. He reiterated his promise for a thirty-hour week, and incredible as it may seem, he broached a State Income Tax. The State Controller had just announced that the State's deficit was going to amount to $65,000,000 by the first of July; and Merriam God help him, has to deal with that problem. Up to election night he had none, but once elected, he announced we might have to have a State Income Tax.

WASHINGTON DEVELOPMENTS

The developments from Washington have been even more electrifying. I told of President Roosevelt's statement that he intended to come out in favor of production for use and how on October 23 I waited in San Francisco for his speech and did not hear it. At that time the President and his friend Professor Volney Davis were interviewing bankers and business men, and reports in the newspapers were all to the "right." But now the election is over, and the people who are advising the President are Hopkins and Tamm, and Taggart; they are discussing the problem of relief, and a sudden silence falls upon the great press of California—not one word do we get. But the New York papers reach us four days late, and what is this talking out? It appears that Mr. Hopkins has a plan which he calls EPIC, and it means "Epicurean in America." Well, well, well!

Mr. Hopkins, reports the New York "Times" of December 2, 1934, does not believe in the "dole." Unlike other Washington officials, he calls it that, and rejects it in favor of what he calls "work relief." Being a tactful and clever man, Mr. Hopkins some time ago set out very quietly to apply his plans on a small scale. He now proposes to apply them to the extent of eight or nine million dollars, and proposes the slogan, End Poverty in America.

What is this program? The New York "Times" tells us as follows: "An expansion of the substanceless homesteads and rural rehabilitation programs to include as many families as need such accommodations or are in a position to accept them. A large-scale removal of families from sub-marginal (unprofitable) land to home sites where they can live on a more civilized scale. Federal advances of funds to both categories to equip their homesteads with tools, livestock, etc. An expansion of the program already in progress on an experimental scale to give factory work to the idle, through what the FEPA calls 'canning centers,' needlecraft centers' or the like. A large-scale low-cost housing program to shelter those unable for one reason or other to move to substance homesteads, since it appears there is no purpose entirely to depopulate the large cities. A social insurance program to give security to the future."

Nearly sixteen months ago, starting our campaign to End Poverty in California, I stated to audiences in substance:

"It doesn't make much difference whom you elect as Governor of California, production for use by the unemployed is coming, because there is no other way to save our State from bankruptcy. It doesn't make much difference what President Roosevelt's ideas may be, or what he may be planning; he will establish production for use for the unemployed, because there is no other way to save our nation from bankruptcy. Four-fifths of our people cannot much longer carry one-fifth upon their backs, and when we have tired of keeping people in idleness, there is nothing we can do about it but give them access to land and machinery, and let them go to work and produce for themselves."

ADOPTING HIS PLAN

The purpose for which I entered the campaign was to open people's minds to that reality; and if I have been able to do that, it matters nothing to me whether the job is done by a reactionary Republican Governor, or by a progressive Democratic President, or by a bipartisan alliance. What do I care if they pay me the compliment of adopting my

53 KILLED IN AUTOACCIDENTS IN THIS COUNTY

The death toll of automobile accidents in this county during 1934 was almost double the figure for 1933, Coroner Aubrey Wilson stated yesterday.

There were 53 deaths during the year, compared with 28 in the year 1933. There were 182 reported cases during the year, as compared with 133 in 1933. Of the cases investigated by the coroner, 61 cases were due to natural causes; 45 were accidents; 27 were suicides and two deaths were due to alcoholism. Four suicides occurred during the year as compared with two in 1933. Seven industrial accidents were listed as compared with one the year before.

The accidents involving motor vehicles included 27 deaths in 1934, as compared with 19 in 1933. Three deaths were due to collisions between automobiles and trains, the same number as in 1933. Ten deaths were due to automobiles leaving the road, as compared with none in 1933. Eight deaths, due to collisions between automobiles, against seven in 1933. Three deaths due to collisions between automobiles and motorcycles, and one due to a motorcycle crash. No deaths under these classifications occurred in 1933.

The additional deaths, classified as falls, also had to do with motor vehicles. One person was killed in a fall from an automobile and two in falls from trucks. One person was killed in a fall from a train, one fell from a house and one from a stairway.

SUICIDES

Poison was the most popular method of committing suicide during the year, seven having ended their lives in this manner, as compared with four in 1933. Only three persons shot themselves in 1934, compared with 12 in 1933. Four hanged themselves in 1934, compared with two in 1933, and four died of gas each year. Two drowned themselves each year, and one suicide was due to stabbing each of the past two years. One suicide in 1934 was caused by a man placing himself before a moving train.

The industrial accidents in 1934 included two by electrocution, one due to burns, one due to a fall, two due to application in an oil tank and one due to an explosion.

Cerrito Home Is Damaged By Blaze

Fire at the home of Humboldt John, El Cerrito cafe owner at San Pablo avenue near Cypress street early last evening did no damage. The blaze, believed to have been caused by a cigarette, started in the kitchen of the home which is located directly behind the cafe.

The El Cerrito fire department responded to the alarm and quickly extinguished the blaze.

John, who has been in the cafe since 1910, said he had no idea how the fire started. He said he had been in the cafe since 1910, and had no idea how the fire started.

On the evening that Merriam made his speech, saying that the unemployed would have to be allowed to go to work in a barter system, a friend in our home said down heavily upon the bed and brot it down. So next morning he drove over to the lumber yard to buy a bed. He found the name in charge of the yard in excitement with two or three others. "What's the matter?" said the friend as he got out of his car, and the answer was "It's this blankety-blank Merriam. They persuaded me this fellow Sinclair was a Communist, and they got me to vote for Merriam, and look here now, he's gone and adopted the other fellow's whole program!"

FRED T. ELSEY, president of the American Trust Company, takes an optimistic view of the outlook for the first four months of 1935.

To Devise Plan For Relief Of Unemployment

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3.—UP.—Creation of state unemployment funds to assist in meeting the problems of future unemployment is favored by the board of directors of the California State Chamber of Commerce, according to a statement of the organization's policy released today.

J. R. Knowland, president of the group, said that the organization favored federal legislation to create the reserve fund in all states. "Such a program should be national in scope, because if adopted in some states, and not in others, unemployment reserves could impose discriminatory burdens upon labor and industry in some states," the statement said.

Under the plan announced today, both employers and employees would participate in the creation of the reserve.

A statewide committee to study specific proposals in regard to legislation on the subject has been appointed.

Deposit Gains Greater Than In Many Years

American Trust company reports for 1934 its greatest increase in deposits since 1926, the year when the present institution was formed.

Statements of condition as of December 31, 1934, show deposits of $217,404,651.08, as compared with $211,291,395.97 on October 31; $206,292,754.94 on June 30; and $198,887,143.88 on December 30, 1933. As compared with a year ago, cash on hand and in banks shows an increase of $11,772,600; bonds are up $15,150,520; loans are off for the year, but show a slight increase in the last six months.

"Business, as a whole, in the United States, for the year, 1934, showed improvement, business failures were greatly reduced, both in number and amount of liabilities. "However, for the year 1934, indicates an improvement in business volume, for the first four months, a recession for the balance of the year would be a wild guess. The major problems that have directly bearing on the return of prosperity are still unsolved. I refer to the unemployment situation; legislative and tax uncertainties; government spending program; stabilization of the currency, and the influence of inflation," said Fred T. Elsey, president of the company.

Will Free Dole If Grand Jury Does Not Indict

OAKLAND, Jan. 3.—UP.—District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda county disclosed today that unless the county grand jury returns an indictment against Judge C. C. Dole, arraignment charges against the acquitted slayer will be dropped.

Agreement between defense and prosecution on such procedure was reached when Dole appeared in justice court today for preliminary hearing. He was charged with peculation of funds he handled as a milk inspector in the City of San Leandro.

Shortages in his accounts were revealed after he had been arrested for the slaying of Lazar Hollinshead, "white huffs" lover of Dole's young wife, Dole was acquitted of the murder by a Woodland jury, to which was presented the "unwritten law" defense.

his Sourland mountain home on March 1, 1932, and then found his 20-month-old son missing. From a lawyer's standpoint, Lindbergh was a perfect witness. He never answered anything he wasn't asked and most of the time his replies consisted of "yes" or "no." Only once did he volunteer any information, and then he offered to tell what he did when he raced upstairs from his library and found his son gone.

TO BE RECALLED

There, court adjourned, and Lindbergh will go back to the witness stand again tomorrow to continue the incredible story of the kidnapping. The search for the child, the hopes and the midnight kidnappings of a cemetery hedge. He probably will be cross-examined. And so Mrs. Lindbergh heard the story of her tragedy three times today, from Wilentz in his opening statement, from her own lips and from her husband.

The state will attempt to prove that the ladder broke while Hauptmann was carrying the baby down it, and that the child was dead before the alleged kidnaper got off the grounds of the Lindbergh estate. "They will prove," Wilentz said, "that the kidnaper ripped a sleeping garment off the child and sent it back to Lindbergh through Dr. J. E. Conder, the 'Jafski' who handled $50,000 ransom across the hedge in St. Raymond's cemetery in New York."

DEMAND DEATH

For this kidnapping and murder, the state will demand a verdict of murder in the first degree, which means the electric chair. "If you don't think this man Hauptmann is guilty," shouted Wilentz, "then acquit him. But if you think he is guilty, we say to you that we give no quarter to kidnappers and murderers in New Jersey and we demand his life for the life he took."

NAME WITHDRAWS

RENO, Nev., Jan. 3.—UP.—Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross of Nevada storm center of an investigation of receivership proceedings connected with the Owl Drug company, today announced that he had requested withdrawal of his name from consideration for elevation to the ninth district court of appeals.

SURPRISE MARRIAGE

Friends of Loren Barber, popular manager of the Tire, Battery and Auto Repairing department at Barber's Service Station on San Pablo avenue, were much surprised to learn on New Year's day of his marriage more than four months ago to Miss Thelma Ladhof of Berkeley.

The couple were secretly married at Carson City, Nevada, during their vacation in August, and had managed to keep their secret until January 1st, when it leaked out when they took an apartment in Albany. In spite of the fact that the head of the Chinese Army, according to today's new dispatches, says that women cannot keep secrets it seems that they can keep their own very well. Congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Loren Barber.

Unearthing Old Skull Indicates Ancient Murder

MARTINEZ, Jan. 3.—Digging up a human skull while excavating on the waterfront yesterday afternoon for a corporation yard building, city workmen disclosed what is unmistakably a murder but one whose perpetrator will unquestionably never be solved. Van attempts were made today to discover other parts of the skeleton.

The skull bears what appears to be a definite gunshot hole in the left temple but whether the skull is that of a man or woman cannot be determined.

The workmen turned it over to Superintendent of Streets E. Van.

Whether the skull was removed to the old garbage dump in a load of garbage or taken there with a load of dirt used for covering cannot be determined.

The skull, Deputy Coroner John Connolly estimated, is from one to four years old.

Dr. W. A. Powell, county health officer, said that the skull, judging from the condition of the jaw and teeth, was that of an adult. Four teeth remain on the left upper jaw, two molars and two bicuspids, and there is one molar on the right side.

Pleurisy May Sometimes Call For An Operation To Drain Off Fluid In Lung Sac

PLEURISY is an inflammation of the pleural membranes. The pleura is the membrane which surrounds the lungs. It forms a sac which supports and protects each lung. It has two layers, the one lying next to the chest wall and the other next to the lung. The space between the two layers is the pleural cavity. It is filled with a fluid called pleural fluid. This fluid acts as a lubricant, allowing the lungs to move freely within the chest cavity. When there is an inflammation of the pleural membranes, the fluid becomes thick and sticky, and the lungs become stiff. This condition is called pleurisy. It is usually caused by a bacterial infection, but it can also be caused by a viral infection or by a non-infectious cause. The symptoms of pleurisy are a sharp pain in the chest, which is worse when you breathe or cough. There may also be a fever and a cough. If the pleurisy is severe, it may be necessary to drain the fluid from the pleural cavity. This is done by a procedure called thoracentesis. In some cases, it may be necessary to perform a more extensive operation called a thorotomy. This is a major surgery, and it is usually reserved for cases in which the pleurisy is caused by a tumor or by a chronic infection.

The third and worst form is that of purulent pleurisy, or empyema, in which pus forms between the pleural layers and may have to be drained out by operation. Any of these may be over a large area, or a very small one. As a result we see many degrees and severity of the inflammation.

Any pleurisy may be the result of a cold or the presence of inflammation and pus in some other part of the body, such as appendicitis, or blood poisoning. The great majority of cases are the result of extension from a pneumonia or lung tuberculosis. Indeed, almost all cases of pneumonia have some pleurisy, which causes much of the stabbing pain. The greatest number of cases are associated with consumption.

Pleurisy starts suddenly with a sharp pain in the side, neck or shoulder, and there may be a chill with some fever. The pain is increased by breathing and any movement of the chest. There is a short cough which is held back because of the pain. A sharp gasp comes with each breath, and the lips and face may become blue, due to the effort not to breathe.

If you listen to the breathing over the painful area, you can hear a crackling like new leather with each breath. If fluid forms, the breath sounds become less distinct, and tapping on the chest will give a dull, dead, woody sound. If the fluid increases, the affected side may be a little larger than the other side, the space between the ribs fills out and appears swollen. The patient appears, and is, very sick.

AS PUS accumulates, the fever runs higher and the heart faster, and that side will scarcely move with a breath. The patient lies on the affected side in the effort to hold that side still and allow the other lung to expand.

Fortunately, it usually affects one side at a time. Chills, fever, headache and sick stomach are common. The seat of the pain and collection of fluid is usually under the armpit and on a level with nipple. When the pain is severe, strapping of the chest on that side to hold it still may be necessary.

The patient should be kept quiet, with light diet. Local applications with counter irritants, such as a mustard plaster, hot water bottle, or turpentine stipes are helpful. The fever lasts from eight to ten days, but if it persists for two or three weeks and fluid is not absorbed, it will be necessary to insert a large hollow needle between two of the ribs under the armpit and draw away the fluid.

Several punctures may be necessary. If pus is present which will not drain through a needle, it may even be necessary to take out a small piece of a rib and drain the area. Tuberculosis is likely to follow pleurisy, and great care must be exercised for months.

Guide to Charm HOLIDAY STRAIN IS LESSENER BY LAZY CLEANSING

By JACQUELINE HUNT

IF YOU have started to wish that the holidays were over, the children back in school and the house in order again, it is a good sign that you need a pick-up treatment. Especially if your eyes also look dull and your mouth dragged down at the corners.

Try to plan a skating party or send the children to a matinee so you will have two hours or more to yourself for a complete rest and a rejuvenating beauty treatment. It will bring back your holiday spirit like magic and carry you triumphantly through the remaining days and nights of parties.

Lock yourself in your bedroom and turn on the bath water, while you slip off your clothing and cleanse your skin thoroughly. Apply a film of softening cream and massage neck, face, hands and arms before getting into your tub.

Of course, the pink bath salts that Santa slipped into your stocking. Rest in the warm, scented water for twenty minutes if you can spare the time. Then lazily work up a fluffy lather on your bath brush (I hope Santa brought you one) and scrub just as lazily, then rinse off with tepid water.

Dry with gentle little pats, dust with bath powder, slip on a fresh nightgown and a warm bath robe while you finish your beauty treatment. Wipe off the extra cream on your face with tissues, but do not wash or use tonic since you will want a tiny bit of cream to remain on your skin.

Now take one of the ready prepared strawberry or herbal masque preparations or make your own by mashing the yolks of eggs and almond meal and spread thinly over your face. Be careful not to get the preparation too close to the eyes or lips. As a precaution it is a good idea to apply extra softening cream in these areas.

Draw your blinds, open your window and lie down with little pads, squeezed out of very warm water to which a few drops of witch hazel or some salt has been added, pressed close to your eyes. Try to go to sleep. If you can't sleep, think of the laziest, pleasantest things you know. Try to keep the facial muscles relaxed so the masque can do its work. The masque should dry on your skin. Remove the paste by sponging with tepid water, pat dry and then if your skin feels too dry, a smooth-on additional cream and leave it there for a few minutes. If your skin normally tends to be quite oily, use a mild cold skin tonic immediately after removing the paste. Your skin will be clear and youthful.

Wait as long as possible before applying your cosmetics, then follow your regular routine. Dress in the prettiest, softest costume you have and be ready to greet your family.

Paul Hindemith, German Modernist Composer, Banned by the Nazis Because He Likes Jews

THE lengths to which Nazi "schrecklichkeit" will go is well illustrated in the case of Paul Hindemith, the modernist German composer, whose music has been banned by the government. Hindemith himself is as Aryan as Hitler could wish, but he has the shocking habit of liking Jews; he so far forgot himself as to fall in love with a Jewish girl and marry her. Besides that, he has played in a string quartet in which there were two Jews, and has made phonograph records with Jewish co-artists.

The onus put on Hindemith by the government so enraged Conductor Furtwaengler of the Berlin Philharmonic that the latter resigned his post as a protest, and there is, as a result, complete chaos in Germany's music world.

It is not the first time, however, that Hindemith has been the center of controversy. His whole life has been one of novel effects which have aroused discussion. Born at Hanau in 1895, he has studied music seriously since he was eleven. He started as a violinist, and still is an accomplished performer on the viola. He attended the Hochschule fur Musik in Frankfurt-am-Main, and by the time he had reached his majority was made concertmaster of the Frankfurt opera orchestra.

His urge for writing has been with him always, and he is a prolific producer. Soon after the war he gained a sensational success—"Sensational" is the word—with a one-act opera called "Murder, the Hope of Women." "Murder," thinking of the Nazis, is a satire on war. Nazis, thinking of the Jews, have plenty of work to which to hate him. Then a few years ago Hindemith dashed off an opera, "The Children of the Night," which was based on the events of the day. In this was a scene where the prisoners sang an aria from a bath house, and there is, as a result, a shocking to Nazi sensibilities.

He has also written much music for small and large groups of instruments. His style is distinctly modern, with plenty of dissonances to keep the listener busy. In America he is often represented on symphony programs, although it cannot be said he has achieved any great popularity here.

It's the Stiff Silks In Party Costumes For Those Who Prefer Northern Season

MIDSEASON STYLES IN FURS

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild.

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Immediately after the New Year is safely ushered in smart folk trek southward or lie themselves off somewhere else—anywhere, so long as it is the correct place at the moment. But for all that, little old New York goes right on being pretty gay and pretty crowded, and one doesn't miss the beautifully dressed deserters because there remain beautifully dressed women. If you are staying North, it's the stiff silks; if you're going South, it's the sheers that count. In any event, there's lots of sparkle and glamour. Long, sweeping lines are a necessity. Fruit as well as flower trimmings are used, and such combinations as net and chiffon are new, especially frou-frou net capes to be worn over party frocks.

In a Mainbocher evening frock a new treatment of flowers in connection with the printed silk frock is noted, the trimming flowers in clusters, like the motif of the print, forming a garland around the knees.

High and centered arrangements of flowers, or prints, are also much liked on day dresses of the more formal type.

Sketched today, at the left, a coat in gray broadtail in an interesting version of the smooth shoulder sleeve silhouette, with small standing collar having rippled outline, to complement the detail of the lower sleeves. The other coat, in black caracul, shows collar manipulation of softened outline, extending in a pointed detail to the back. Again the sleeve treatment is of interest, with the line worked in one with the bodice.

At right of the column, a knitted ski suit employs a finely ribbed knit yoke with contrasting shaker stitch knit wool for the sleeves, yoke and turtle-neck sweater. The yoke is a loose one worked over the shoulders of the knitted jacket and buttoning down giving an added layer of warmth.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today Learning the Cuts of Meat Is Great Help to Housewife

By JUDITH WILSON

WHEN the last vestige of the holiday turkey or goose has disappeared, you probably wonder what to buy next—something inexpensive, of course, until the family budget has a chance to become normal again. Real food economy begins with the meat you serve, so it will pay you to visit your butcher shop and familiarize yourself with the cheaper cuts of beef, veal and lamb and with some of the methods of converting these cuts into tender, appetizing roasts, steaks, stews, meat pies and loafs.

Since a pot roast is always an economical buy, you will want to serve it often. Do not ask simply for a pot roast, but tell the butcher what kind of a pot roast you want. The long bone from the chuck is a good cut, as the meat is very fine in grain, tender, and nicely flavored. It is also nicely proportioned in fat and lean. The meat from this cut is not easily carved, however, due to the bone.

Sections of the chuck and round, rolled and tied by the butcher, and sometimes larded with strips of fat or salt pork, make excellent pot roasts. They are usually quite lean, and they are easily carved. They may cost a little more, however, since there is a good deal of waste in the bones removed by the butcher.

Boned brisket and flank are among the cheapest of the beef cuts, but both are made tender and appetizing by the right cooking. Boned brisket may be cooked, or if it is sold fresh it is good for boiling and serving with horseradish. It is quite fat, but the fat has a good flavor and use by no means objectionable. Serve boiled potatoes and a salad of crisp fresh greens with a sharp dressing with the boiled beef.

You can get both flank steak and "flank." The first is made up of long fibers, but is fairly tender and is delicious when marinated in tomato juice or French dressing for an hour or so and then rolled in the regular way. Slice the boiled steak by holding the knife on an angle and cut into half-inch slices.

The flank steak costs slightly more than the flank proper, but either is delicious when spread with a bread stuffing, rolled up, tied and roasted to a crusty brown. The regular flank can be cut into small cubes and used for stew or meat pie if you wish.

Spicy Pot Roast
The secret of a delicious pot roast is long cooking. For unusual flavor rub the meat on all sides with a mixture of spices, including salt, cinnamon and cloves. Slice an onion and lay half of it with a sliced clove of garlic and a bay leaf in a covered dish. Lay the pot roast on top of this and sprinkle the meat with one-half cup brown sugar, the rest of the onion slices, and pour over all one cup vinegar. Let the meat stand in this marinade for twelve hours or more, turning occasionally. The meat may be taken out of the marinade, drained and browned in hot fat, then the liquid added along with a small amount of water, the pot, covered tightly and the meat allowed to simmer slowly until very tender.

Pork is always a good buy, but there are so many good ways of preparing it that we should save the recipes and shopping information for another column. Since you may want to serve the simple menu given above, however, I will tell you how to prepare the sausages and peaches.

Broiled Sausages and Peaches
Place link sausages on the rack of the broiler four inches from the broiling flame. Set the halves of canned peaches on the same broiler with the round sides down and the hollows filled with bits of butter. Let the sausages and the peaches broil for twelve to fifteen minutes, turning the sausages several times so they are evenly browned and crisp. Serve on a hot platter, surrounded with the peach halves.

You and Your Child PATIENCE PLUS TIME NEEDED TO END BAD HABITS

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

JIMMY was listening to his mother tell a story. Before long his thumb slipped into his mouth and he sucked away with cherubic innocence. His mother stopped speaking. She looked at him meaningfully. The three-and-a-half-year-old boy released his thumb long enough to say, "Go on, mother," and resumed sucking. But mother could not go on. "Jimmy, stop sucking your thumb. How do you expect to earn that bicycle?"

Jimmy dropped his hand quickly. He looked puzzled, as if he were trying to figure out how that thumb had got back into his mouth again anyway. For ever since mother had promised him a bicycle if he would stop sucking his thumb, he had made up his mind not to do it any more. He wanted a bicycle very much. Julia next door had one. But that thumb was a problem. He did not want to suck it. He did not like to do it especially. He just did it. He guessed it was a bad habit.

Mother could see that the promise of a bicycle had made a profound impression on Jimmy. He asked about it all the time, adding, "I don't suck my thumb." Mother thought, "He is trying to earn it. I'll get him one now. It may help him overcome the habit." The bicycle came, and Jimmy jumped with joy, shouting, "I don't suck my thumb, mother!"

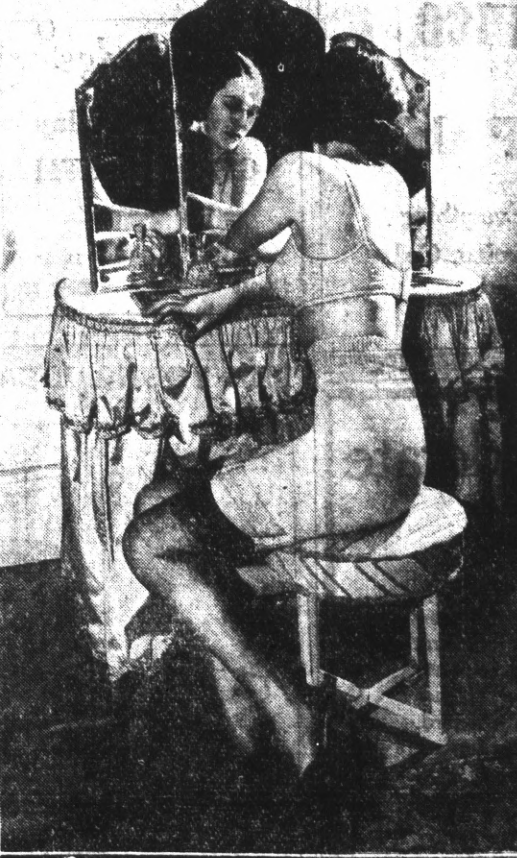

Several months have passed and the bicycle is still Jimmy's favorite toy, but, needless to relate, he sucks his thumb as much as ever. The habit is as much a part of him as talking or walking. However, there is no doubt in his mother's mind that he is trying to overcome it, as he does not ask for the bicycle or mention it or see it without remembering to say, "I don't suck my thumb." Yet this saddens his mother.

The moral, of course, is not to bribe, promise or give presents. These devices only fixate the faults which they are intended to remove. Jimmy's mother should appear to ignore the habit, thus giving the child a chance to forget about it too. Then she must try to devise ways for keeping his hands and mind happily occupied. As he acquires new satisfactions, the infantile form of gratification will become less and less necessary for him. It will take time. Give him time.

If you have a bed with wire springs, the wear and tear on sheets is probably hard. You can avoid this by using a mattress cover over the wire springs. This prevents the sheets from coming into contact with the wires and gives the spring the appearance of a box spring.

Cake batter may be stored for several days. Try to remember this some day, when in the midst of baking a cake you are called upon unexpectedly to leave the house or entertain. Pour it into the baking pan, as for baking. Then cover tightly with damp cloth. Over this wrap waxed paper and tie securely with a cord, and store in the refrigerator.

MODERN WAY OF CORSETING

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

A Bachelor Remains a Bachelor Because He Sees Several Wives Who Are Cheating

HERE'S a letter from a disgruntled bachelor who seems too harsh in his judgment of wives in general just because he numbers among his acquaintances a "chiseler" and a "cheater." He is saddened by the idea that worthy husbands are being wronged by designing wives. We agree with him that it is a deplorable state of affairs. But we can't agree that all wives must be condemned because of the sins of a few. Nor are we sorry that men place implicit confidence in their wives. When the day comes that they either can't or don't, true marriage is at an end. We all feel the need of someone we can trust, and who should it be if not one's wife or husband?

"My dear Mrs. Martin: The naive confidence most men have in their wives is amazing to me, a man who knows enough about women to know that there are plenty of cheaters among them. I have in mind one man who works like a slave to support a woman who double-crosses him every chance she gets—and she gets plenty. Yet this blind fool never suspects a thing and goes on, not only working like a slave, but being almost slavishly in love with her. It makes me sore. I know another man, cold as steel in business, shrewd as they make 'em. His wife is, as far as I know, okay, unless you don't happen to think chiseling is okay. She works him for all he's worth, sending money to her worthless brothers, and banking some of it for a rainy day (hers, not his). Honestly, when that man goes broke, as he may, I don't think she'll loosen up with a nickel. That makes me sore too. He's such a good guy, and she's extravagant and not worth her salt as far as being a help-mate goes. Yet who can put him wise? Such things as this keep me a bachelor. Am I right?"—Nix."

IF YOUR letter is intended as proof that all wives are like the two you mention I am afraid it falls short of its mark. You must know other couples, and are the exception to a general rule of good behavior. Better stop getting steamed up over the abused husbands you know unless you are one of those who aid in the abuses, in which case don't blame the wives altogether.

It's perfectly natural for a man to trust his wife. His shrewdness and coldness toward the world at large is no guarantee of not being fooled in his personal relationships with women. In fact, such a man might be more glib than most. Of course it makes you sore to see a good man betrayed, or made a fool of. All decent people react the same way. But there isn't anything we can do about it excepting keep your own house in order. You are not using very sound logic or good sense in staying single just because there are some chisellers and cheaters in the world.

YOU appear to forget that the percentage of good wives is pretty high, and that loads of husbands, worthy and otherwise, have very excellent help-mates. Focus your attention on the other couples you know—don't think you have learned about women from the two you select as horrible examples.

How many cheaters do you know among men? Not that two wrongs make a right by any means, but just to remind you that women are people and no worse, certainly, than the run of the mill of human beings.

It always seems a shame that a good man gets stuck with a bad wife, but maybe it's poetic justice working in a dark and mysterious way, since many a good woman has been stuck with a bad husband.

Unfortunately, we do not always love a person because of good qualities, nor are we all good judges of character. Don't spend so much time in lamentation over the plight of your friends. You may be biased.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you violently sweat and heave and full of sin. You have a bile problem. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.
If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just drowns in the bowels.
Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul.
You often break out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.
It takes three good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing
when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
But don't look for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the label. Refuse a substitute. See at drug store. ©1934 C. M. Co.

competition from the bay. In event this provision was not met the money would not be advanced, he indicated.

VOTE IS TAKEN

Near the close of the meeting, Governor Merriam requested those present to indicate whether they favored the RFC loan application with the understanding the agreement was optional. Only six of those voicing an opinion said "no."

"I take it then, that the Toll Bridge Authority would be justified to go ahead with negotiations for a loan, providing it is optional," the governor said.

"EAR-MARK LOAN"

It was pointed out subsequently that continued negotiations for the money would not necessarily mean completion of contracts with the Southern Pacific and the Key System for bridge interurban service. Such procedure would "ear-mark" the federal loan and at the same time permit bay communities to decide on a mutually satisfactory plan of service, it was said.

Governor Merriam said he would like to have the matter settled by the people concerned but that he might ask to participate in the issue to protect the state's interests.

TO FORM COMMITTEE

He said he would like city attorneys of the various bay region communities to form a committee, draft an agreement covering the interurban service provisions and if all concerned adopted the plan he would accept it.

Various representatives argued against issuance of franchises to the S. P. or Key System on the ground that such action would represent too hasty agreements. Official delegations expressed themselves as practically unanimous in favor of careful procedure and slower action on the problem.

Earl Lee Kelly, state director of public works, said that negotiations for the federal loan would have to be completed before January 31.

Killers' Fate Is In The Hands Federal Jury

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 3.—UP—A federal jury deliberating conspiracy charges against six defendants accused of plotting the Union Station massacre of five persons required for the night shortly after 10 P. M.

Judge Merrill Otis told the jurors to resume their work at 9 A. M. tomorrow.

Charges were dismissed against Mrs. Frank Nash, one of the original eight defendants, when she testified for the government.

Verne Miller, gangster since slain, Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, killed by federal agents in Ohio and Adam Richetti, now in government custody were charged as the actual killers.

Frank Nash, escaped convict had been arrested in Hot Springs by federal agents and was hurried by machine and train from Hot Springs to Kansas City, enroute to prison. At his arrest, his wife contacted the other defendants, the government charged and a plot was hatched to free Nash here.

The party was met by gangsters at the station. When the officers failed to obey a "hands up" command, gunfire ensued four of them down and killed Nash as well.

Richard T. Galates, Hot Springs gambler; his wife, Elizabeth; Herbert Farmer, Joplin, Mo., resort operator; his wife, Esther; Lewis Starn, Chicago roadhouse owner, and Frank Malloy, Kansas City gangster, awaited the jury's verdict. That is why he had the heart-to-heart talk with the people of California over the radio, so he could make plain the magnitude, and may I add, impossibility, of the task that confronts him. Increased taxation, he knows will not prove popular, but increased taxation in some guise or other it must be unless we are willing as a commonwealth to admit that we are bankrupt and unable to pay our bills, in some respects therefore his address reminds one of a surgeon who in as gentle words as his vocabulary admits, prepares a patient for a serious and painful operation.

OVERHAULING NEEDED

While not a fiscal expert by any means it looks to me as though an entire revamping of the financial affairs of our government is overdue with the elimination of all frills and furbelows and the retention of only the vital essentials to the end that our affairs be gotten into shape and the shame of bankruptcy avoided.

WALDMOHR, Germany, Jan. 4.—UP—Persistent pressure by U. S. consular authorities resulted in release today of Miss Elsa Sittell, young New York woman, held 10 days in solitary confinement here on charges of slandering Adolf Hitler.

The young woman, formerly employed in the New York law office of John W. Davis, walked free at 4:30 P. M. She was not ordered deported, and it was rumored she intends to proceed with her original plans to visit her parents before returning to America.

financial troubles and difficulties had their inception way back in the years when Hiram Johnson became governor and gave us a new form of government—a government that by its very nature called for increased expenditures every year under the pseudonym of reform. If he was right, we have paid and are paying very dearly for reform. But was it reform, after all? To a casual observer it appears that out of the welter of such ideas has grown a vast political machine, for the maintenance of which we have assumed a load that is too heavy to carry. Mr. Merriam is the unfortunate successor only, and is not directly responsible for the embarrassing predicament in which he finds himself. He created none of the thousands of commissions and boards which bleed us white, but he must provide the coin to carry on. Where he is to get it is the question and no one better realized that fact than himself.

Government May Operate Famous Jackson Mines

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—UP—J. L. Marsh, labor leader, today predicted federal operation of the famous Kennedy and Argonaut mines in Jackson as an "emergency measure in the wage controversy," that has led to the closing of the two large mines.

Refusing to recognize the miners' union, operators of the two large producers have indicated they would close the mines permanently and allow them to fill with water rather than meet the miner's demands.

The governments desire to increase the nation's gold supply was given by Marsh as the basis of his prediction of federal operation.

attorney, with the result that at the final election in November he was elected by one of the largest majorities ever received by any official. "This position is one of the most important in the county, as the district attorney is not only the adviser to the board of supervisors, but to every official. In addition he is the public prosecutor."

With the assistance and co-operation of the deputies he has selected, his friends in all sections of the county, know that his administration will be a success, and will bring great credit to him.

A few words concerning the deputies will not be amiss they will be dealing with the public in general, and the public is entitled to know who and what they are. CHIEF DEPUTY REX BOYER.

Rex L. Boyer, chief deputy is one of the veterans of the bar of the county. His birthplace was Lafayette, and after gaining his elementary education in his hometown, he entered the Mt. Diablo union high school at Concord where he graduated with honor. After studying law in the office of J. E. Rodgers at Martinez, he entered the Kent law school of San Francisco, where he completed the course and was admitted to practice. For a number of years he was court reporter, then actively entered the practice of law.

For ten years he was associated with the late W. S. Tinning, was a deputy under District Attorney A. B. Tinning for four years, and also served in a similar capacity under District Attorney James F. Hoey for a year. At that time he resigned, and opened law offices in Martinez. Boyer's appointment will meet with general approval, as he has the confidence and respect of all.

HOMER PATTERSON

Attorney Homer Patterson will also serve as a deputy under Healey, and he will have charge of the branch office in Richmond, and will handle the business arising in the western part of the county. Patterson is well qualified for the new position he will assume next week. He has been a resident of Richmond since 1916, and a practicing attorney since 1923. After graduating from Stanford university, he entered the law offices of the now Lieutenant Governor George Hatfield in war. The Republicans go into action with Byrns promise that he will protect the rights of the minority members at all times and permit full debate on vital legislation. His pledge coincided with a similar one made yesterday by Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson to a meeting of Senate Democrats. Robinson said the need of passing important measures without proper deliberation has passed.

BRILLIANT SCENE

Spectators began gathering in corridors more than an hour before the new Congress, first to have a two third Democratic majority in 80 years, was due to convene. As usual, the ceremony in the House was the most spectacular.

Brilliant flood lights dropped from the ceiling. Cameras had been set up in every vantage point. Members milled noisily about the floor. Some had brought their children who took seats while congressmen stood.

San Francisco. After spending one and a half years there, he moved to Richmond, which city has since been his home. He is a man of family, and resides at 204 Sonoma. Patterson is a veteran of the World War and is a member of Richmond Post, No. 10, American Legion. He has made a name for himself not only in this city, but the county as well, for his legal ability, and is held in the highest esteem by all.

HAROLD JACOBY

The third deputy, Harold Jacoby although a native of San Francisco, for the past fourteen years has resided at El Cerrito, during which time he has practiced law both in this county and Alameda.

Jacoby is a war veteran, and is the first vice-commander of Louis Hagen Post, No. 340 of El Cerrito. The new appointee is a graduate of the University of California, and the experience he has gained in law practice well fits him for the position for which District Attorney Healey has selected him. Jacoby has been very active in civic affairs in western Contra Costa, and for years has been one of the outstanding citizens of the county line town.

Did you ever notice... in a roomful of people... the difference between one cigarette and another... and wonder why Chesterfields have such a pleasing aroma

Many things have to do with the aroma of a cigarette... the kind of tobaccos they are made of... the way the tobaccos are blended... the quality of the cigarette paper.

IT takes good things to make good things.

Someone said that to get the right aroma in a cigarette, you must have the right quantity of Turkish tobacco—and that's right.

But it is also true that you get a pleasing aroma from the home-grown tobaccos... tobaccos filled with Southern Sunshine, sweet and ripe.

When these tobaccos are all blended and cross-blended the Chesterfield way, balanced one against the other, you get a flavor and fragrance that's different from other cigarettes.
